DEBT BILL KEPT FREE OF BONUS

Democrats' Move To Link 2 Measures Beaten In House

Washington, Jan. 31.—Discussion of the long-pending soldier bonus bill was renewed today at both ends of the Capitol. Before the House Ways and Means Committee, which, by agreement of Republican leaders in Congress, reopened hearings on the measure, officers of organizations of former service men urged immediate action on the bill, and in reply to questions said the problem of raising the necessary funds was one for Congress to solve.

In the Senate Republican leaders frustrated attempts by the Democrats to add the bonus bill to the allied debt refunding measure. After a brief but heated debate the Senate adopted 42 to 28, a motion by Senator Watson, Republican, Indiana, to lay on the table an amendment offered by Senator Simmons, Democrat, North Carolina, incorporating the "five-way" adjusted compensation plan.

The amendment would have provided that the bonus be paid out of the interest on the foreign debt, and that if this should prove insufficient the secretary of the Treasury should issue certificates of indebtedness to be redeemed out of future interest payments, or with the approval of the President to sell so much of the foreign bonds as might be necessary. Later the Senate rejected 42 to 21, an amendment by Senator Jones, Democrat, New Mexico, which carried the "five-way" plan, but had no provision for raising funds.

Favors Separate Action.

In offering his amendment, Senator Simmons declared that when he had proposed the bonus bill as an amendment to the tax revision measure he had been told that it was the desire of the majority to act on the bonus in connection with the debt refunding bill, but now that the Republicans had decided in party conference that the bonus measure should be acted upon separately.

The North Carolina senator went on to say that the administration had now decided that it would not be feasible to use the interest on the foreign debt for this purpose, and it was the plan instead to levy new and special taxes. Asserting that Chairman Forney, of the Ways and Means Committee, had proposed a tax on gasoline, Senator Simmons said this would place the whole burden of the bonus on the users of that commodity and would be class legislation in its worst form.

Opposing the amendment, Chairman McCumber, of the Finance Committee, declared it had been decided to have the bonus bill originate in the House, because it would be a revenue-raising measure and that everyone knew that adjusted compensation legislation soon would be enacted. He deprecated what he called the injection of party politics into the question and said he objected to adding the bonus to the debt bill because the President had declared his opposition to any bonus measure that did not provide funds for immediate payment to the former service men.

Watson Motion Carries.

Senator Watson, of Indiana, cut the discussion short with a motion to lay on the table, stating that everyone knew a bonus bill soon would be passed. The motion brought protests from the Democratic side, Senators Ashurst, of Arizona; Pittman, of Nevada, and others declaring that it violated the spirit of the unanimous consent agreement, which was designed, they said, to limit debate and not prohibit it. Republicans contested this view and, after considerable wrangling, the point of order against the motion was overruled by Vice President Coolidge. The senate then adopted the Watson motion, with three Republicans—Johnson, La Follette and Norris—voting against it, and two Democrats—King and Myers—supporting it.

In his statement before the Ways and Means Committee, Hanford Macnider, national commander of the American Legion, attacked Secretary Mellon for opposing the bonus legislation at his time. He declared that "instead of opposing this bill by pointing out the difficulties of financing it, Mr. Mellon would 'do better to find and suggest proper methods of raising the money.'"

THE REVIVAL HAS BEGUN

The revival at the Methodist Church in Hartford opened last Monday night with a large audience for the beginning. Rev. L. W. Turner, who arrived that evening, preached his opening sermon from the subject "A Good Beginning." The discourse was right to the point and much appreciated by all present. He preaches like he means business while he is at it and quits when he is done. The new song books have come and the choir had a rehearsal after services under the direction of W. J. Bean, who will have charge of the music during the meeting. The new song books have some fine pieces in them and you will enjoy them. The children up to fifteen years of age will have a choir of their own conducted by Mrs. W. S. Tinsley, and will practice at 3:15 in the afternoon and 6:30 in the evening. All children wishing to join this choir are invited to be present. We earnestly solicit the prayers of every one that this may be a revival indeed, in which people will be converted, backsliders reclaimed, and the faith of Christians built up. What does Hartford need worse than a good revival? Come and let's have one for the whole community.

T. T. FRAZIER, Pastor.

NOCREEK STAGES

WORTHY CONTEST

Nocreek P. T. A. members and non-members of the district are staging a worth while contest. Those non-members of the association challenged the association for a contest at spelling and ciphering, the first of which was recently had which resulted in a fifty-fifty split. The Association winning the spelling match and outsiders capturing the ciphering contest. It is to be done over this evening at the district schoolhouse, and a warm time is promised. Each side is grooming for the other and the prediction is that the margin of difference will be small.

HARTFORD HIGH FIVE DEFEATS FORDSVILLE

The local High School Quintette came out on the long end of a score of 27 to 16 with the Fordsville net tossers last Friday night on the former's court, in what is considered one of the hardest contested, and decidedly the roughest game ever witnessed in Hartford, by high school basketball teams. It was a rough and tumble affair from the start, the last half the making the first look tame. The Five from the Northern end of the County played a dandy good game, and had old man Luck played in their favor to a perceptible degree, as is sometimes the case in these games, it would have been hard to have beaten them. Luck did not seem to take a hand for either team. It is said that Greer, Fordsville Guard, had not permitted a forward whom he was guarding to score upon him during this year, let Crowe for Hartford, get away for five field goals. It was a good game to witness, full of thrills, but was too rough and it is to be hoped that the rough stuff will be, to a greater extent, kept out of future contests. Prof. Belt of Fordsville and Elijah (Prophet) Thomas, of Hartford, officiated and each was as impartial and fair as possible to be.

The line-up:

Hartford		Fordsville
Crowe	12 F	Marlow
Shults	1 F	Bellamy
Bartlett	1 C	Ford
Bennett	4 G	White
Likens	10 G	Greer

HORSE BRANCH

SUBLETT HELD TO AWAIT GRANDJURY

3 Held On Liquor Charges, 1 For Pistol Carrying, In Co. Court.

Jess Sublett, whose name we gave last week as "Jeff" who was arrested, brought to Hartford and lodged in Jail Thursday of last week on the charge of killing Marshal Pherson, at Rockport, waived examining trial Monday, and was held to await action of the March grand jury, without bond.

Wade Rayment, Wilbur Geary and Yerkes Johnson arrested at Rockport, and brought to Hartford last Saturday by Sheriff Ralph on charges of unlawfully having liquor in their possession, in an examining trial held in County Court Wednesday, were held over to the March term of Circuit Court and their bonds fixed at $300.00, each. In addition to the liquor charge Johnson was carrying concealed a pistol, and his bond on this charge was fixed at $200.

Upon their failure to execute bonds the defendants were returned to jail.

A CORRECTION.

Our esteemed contemporary in an article on the City Government, last week's issue, stated that the City Council had employed D. S. Bennett Marshal, at a salary of $90.00 per month with pay extra for his team. The statement is erroneous in the fact that the $90.00 per month covers the full amount to be paid for both team and marshal. In short the pay of Marshal Bennett cannot exceed $1,080 per year, and according to the terms of the contract it may be less.

BIRTHDAY SURPRISE

A surprise dinner was given Mr. Yewell Foster by his mother, at the Commercial Hotel, February 1st, in honor of his 14th birthday.

Those who sat at the festive board were his grandmother, Mrs. W. T. Brown, his teacher, Mrs. S. O. Keown, his S. S. teacher, Rev. Russell Walker and friends, Alec Johnson, Joseph Carson and William Carson.

The affair was quite a surprise to Yewell and enjoyed by all.

CLEAR RUN.

Mrs. Fannie Murry is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Crowe, in Owensboro.

Miss Georgia Trogden spent last week-end with her brother, Shelby Trogden and Mrs. Trogden, in the Barnett's Creek vicinity.

Gustava, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Westerfield, who has been very ill of bronchial pneumonia, is better at this writing.

Herchel Park is among the sick at present.

Maurice, Lucile and Golda Belle Park, Yates Everling, Walter, Henry, and Hazel Trogden, spent Sunday with the children of Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Park.

Miss Effie Gray and small sister, Maudie, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Armil Gray, at Barnett's Creek, Saturday night and Sunday.

Mrs. Viola Trogden received a message Wednesday, stating that her little niece Martha Ellman Skaggs, aged 4 years, and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Curt Skaggs of near Rockport, Ind., died Jan. 24, of diphtheria, at the home of her aunt, Miss Blanche McFall, where she and her mother were visiting. She was taken ill shortly after their arrival. Mrs. Trogden being herself ill, was unable to attend the funeral, which took place in Sunset Hill Cemetery.

Miss Winnie Davis Simmerman, city, and Miss Anna Barnes, Beaver Dam, are the guests of Mrs. S. F. Ferguson of Indianapolis, Ind., on their return home they will spend a few days.

Rev. and Mrs. R. E. Fuqua, returned Sunday from Louisville, where they had been spending a week with their son, Gilbert Fuqua, and wife, each of whom had been quite ill. Rev. Fuqua attended the funeral of Dave Jackson, Secretary of the Grand Lodge F. & A. M., while in the City.

FLU IN EPIDEMIC FORM IN NEW YORK

813 Cases Reported In Last 24 Hours;
Aged And Infants Suffer
Most From Malady.

New York, Jan. 31.—Influenza cases in this city have reached epidemic proportions, Health Commission in making public a report showing in making public a report showing that 813 cases of the disease and 283 cases of pneumonia had been reported during the past twenty-four hours. There were forty-three deaths from the two causes.

Dr. Copeland pointed out that the epidemic this year was much milder than the one of 1918-19, when on the corresponding day there were reported 2,070 cases of influenza and 283 of pneumonia, with 61 deaths from the former and 99 from the latter. The comparison, he explained, show that the disease this year is not as infectious or as fatal as it was two years ago, but he declared there was sufficient reason for the public taking all possible precautions.

Dr. Copeland also called attention to the age groups that were affected in the epidemic of 1918-19 as compared with the groups affected this year. In 1918-19 the age group of those between 15 and 45 years was the most fatally affected, while this year those in the extremes of life appear to be the hardest hit.

So far this year those under 5 years of age who have died from influenza and pneumonia represent 38 per cent of the mortalities; those of 45 to 65 years of age represent 22 per cent, and those 65 years and over represent 15 per cent, leaving 25 per cent for those of the ages between 5 and 45.

The commissioner expressed the opinion that there may be some degree of immunity given by the epidemic of 1918-19 and 1920, because in those epidemics the middle-aged were the most seriously affected, while they are comparatively free from the malady now.

The commissioner blamed poorly heated houses as partly responsible for the spread of the disease this year, and he ordered inspectors of the department to prefer charges against all landlords negligent in supplying of heat. Arrangements also were made with the traction companies for increased ventilation of their cars during the rush hours.

HUBERT E. ROSS

Hubert E. Ross died in a hospital of Detroit, Mich., Tuesday, Jan. 28, after an operation, or rather after a second operation, the first of which it is said was too long delayed, for appendicitis. The deceased young man was 30 years, 4 months and 9 days of age and a son of Mr. J. F. Ross of Centertown. The remains were returned to Centertown where burial took place Tuesday afternoon, after funeral services, which were conducted by the Rev. L. W. Tichenor.

Besides his father, the deceased is survived by two brothers and one sister in addition to half brothers and sisters, children of his father by a second marriage. He was a splendid young man and much admired by all who knew him.

QUICK ACTION SAVES WOMAN FROM INJURY

What might have been a serious accident was narrowly averted Monday of this week by the presence of mind and heroic action of Bruce Montgomery, a member of the Bond Tie Company. Mr. Montgomery, in company with others, was making a tie-inspection trip over the local L. & N. Railroad, by motor car and were coming over the road between Kronos and Centertown, when a lady was seen walking upon the track some distance ahead. They kept thinking that she would leave the track and upon coming near enough to be heard they endeavored to warn the lady by hallooing and calling to her but she quietly proceeded upon her way without taking notice of approaching danger. When it was seen that she was unmindful of the approaching motor car, frantic efforts were made to stop it by those in charge, but a too sudden stop, if it could have been made, meant disaster to those on board. When the car was almost upon the woman Mr. Montgomery, who is somewhat athletically inclined, and said to be very strong, leaped for the woman, catching her in his arm on the fly, so to speak and they both tumbled off of the track, almost unharmed, the lady receiving only slight bruises to one foot, but almost scared to death as she never knew that there was a motor car or any other person near until suddenly grabbed by her rescuer. She is deaf, which explains the fact that she did not hear the approaching car and the frantic efforts of those on board to warn her. She is the wife of Mr. E. E. Camel, residing in the vicinity of the near-accident.

MISSSES COLEMAN AND DAVIDSON ENTERTAIN

Misses Elizabeth Davidson and Sallie Coleman entertained the Senior Class of Beaver Dam High School last Thursday evening with a theater party after which the Seniors were again their guests at the basket ball game between Livermore and Beaver Dam. The group then adjourned to the home of Mr. R. W. King, where a delightful lunch was served. The class colors, green and pink, were used.

Those present besides the hostesses were: Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Allison, Mr. and Mrs. King, Mr. and Mrs. Martin; Misses Della Hazelrigg, Pauline Barnard, Florence Taylor, Corinne Taylor, Katherine Moorman, Iva Rander, Carrie Southard, Messrs. Clyde Taylor, Leonard Baker, Henry Barnard, Hubert Greer, Guy Daniel, Jonathan Rogers, Bedford Robinson, Wendell Ralph, Otha Burch Taylor, Eldred Young.

HOSPITAL TO BE OPENED FEB. 22

Dawson Springs Sanitarium Launching Will Be Big Affair.

(Louisville Herald.)

The United States Sanitarium for World War Veterans at Dawson Springs, Ky., the largest of its kind in the country, just completed at a cost of many million dollars, will be formally dedicated on Washington's Birthday, February 22, in the presence of a distinguished assemblage of national, state and city officials. It was announced yesterday by Collector of Customs Thomas L. Walker.

Arrangements have been made to have virtually the entire personnel and enlisted men, including military bands, of Camp Knox attend the ceremony, which will be largely military. All the officers and men of the American Legion of Kentucky have been invited, also both houses of the state Legislature and city officials of Louisville.

The Dawson Springs Commercial Club, under whose auspices the arrangements are to be perfected, have already made arrangements for several special trains from Frankfort for the accommodation of Governor Morrow and official family. Similar arrangements for a special train from Louisville will be made at once, it was said.

Col. Edward Clifford, assistant secretary of the treasury, will be the official representative of the government on the occasion. He will formally turn the institution over to Lieut. Col. H. C. Whiteledge, of the United States Health Service, who will be in charge of the hospital. Incidentally Colonel Whiteledge is a native Kentuckian, and will superintend the treatment of the thousands of invalid veterans at this sanitarium.

The sanitarium, which was pronounced by Collector Walker a "fitting testimonial to our boys," consists of twenty-two large fireproof buildings, covering seventy-five acres on a reservation of 5,000 acres donated by citizens of Hopkins, Caldwell and Christian Counties. The sanitarium represents the very last word in equipment, everything being operated by electricity. Nothing has been overlooked that will add to the convenience and comfort of the veterans.

Altho great progress has been made in the plans, they are by no means complete. It is the aim of those in charge to make the occasion the most monumental patriotic affair ever staged in Kentucky. It is roughly estimated that more than 50,000 persons will attend the ceremony, including officials from all corners of the state and nation, also the members of the judiciary, and patriotic, civic and business organizations.

Several film corporations have already made arrangements to record the display for the movies. The official announcement of the date for the ceremony was made by Collector Walker at the instance of the Treasury Department at Washington. Collector Walker, by virtue of his official office, has been disbursing officer during the construction of the sanitarium.

Chronic Constipation.

There are people who never have a movement of the bowels without it is produced by a cathartic. Most of them have brought that condition on themselves by the use of mineral waters and strong cathartics that take too much water out of the system and aggravate the disease they are meant to relieve. A mild laxative tonic like Chamberlain's Tablets affords a gentle movement of the bowels that you hardly realize has been produced by a medicine, and their uses is not so likely to be followed by constipation.

BEST GRADES OF STOCK FOUND ON RICHEST SOIL

Lexington, Ky., Feb. 1.—The five counties in Kentucky having the highest land values also have the highest value for live stock, according to figures being used by soils specialists at the College of Agriculture to show farmers of the State that good soils and good livestock are usually found together. This is true because the quality of livestock usually is influenced by the quality of pastures and home grown feed, the specialists say. In general farming, a livestock industry cannot be developed with purchased feeds, they declare.

In five counties where the land values were found to be highest, or an average of $198.45 an acre, the average value of livestock was found to be $75 a head for beef cattle, $66 for dairy cattle, $13.70 for sheep and $13.10 for hogs.

In the five counties ranking from sixteenth to twentieth in land values, which was an average of $90.43 an acre, the value of beef cattle, dairy cattle, sheep and hogs was respectively two-thirds, five-sixths, five-sevenths and five-sixths of the value for animals of the same classes in the counties having the highest land values.

Similar relations between the land values and livestock values were brought out in a study of the figures for counties farther down the scale.

NEW YORK FARMER NOW FEELS FINE

At Age 72, Fox Says He Can Do As Much Hard Work As He Ever Could—Gains 35 Pounds.

"I wouldn't swap the good Tanlac has done for me for the finest farm in Onondaga county," said George M. Fox, a well-known farmer living on R. F. D. No. 2, Fayetteville, N. Y.

"Although I am now seventy-two years of age," said Mr. Fox, "I have gained exactly thirty-five pounds in weight by taking Tanlac. More than two years ago my health began to fail, and from then until I got Tanlac I went down hill fast. I fell off until I only weighed one hundred and thirty pounds and was so weak I could hardly drag myself about. I had a tired feeling all the time, and frequently when trying to do some little job I would have to go and lie down. Often after getting up in the morning I felt so weak and bad I just went back to bed. Finally I got down to where I was almost past going."

"A friend of mine in Syracuse told me that Tanlac had done him a world of good and persuaded me to try it. I began to pick up right from the start. I have now taken seven bottles of Tanlac and have gone up from a hundred and thirty to one hundred and sixty-five pounds and just feel like a man made over. All that tired feeling is gone and I am now strong and vigorous. In spite of my age I am working every day and, honestly, I believe I can do as much work as at any time of my life."

Tanlac is sold in Hartford by Dr. L. B. Bean, and by all leading druggists everywhere.—Advertisement.

The Story of Our States

By JONATHAN BRACE
XLV.—OKLAHOMA

OKLAHOMA holds the record for rapid growth. It was in the first term of President

Benjamin Harrison that Oklahoma was opened up. Good farm land available under the Homestead Act was difficult to find so the United States bought from the Indians, who had been segregated in Indian territory, a large tract of some 40,000 square miles that had been used largely by the Indians as pasture for their cattle and horses. This was called Oklahoma, a word meaning "fine country," and was arranged to be ready for sale to homesteaders at 12 o'clock noon of April 22, 1889. Troops were placed on guard to prevent any settlers entering before that time for more than 100,000 "boomers" as they were called, came from all over the country to obtain farms or places for business. On the stroke of the hour, bugles sounded and the mad rush by men, women and children to locate claims began. The government had arranged land officers at many places at which claims could be filed for the farms or city lots, and all that day these were besieged by fighting mobs to register their selections. Before nightfall hundreds of farms were staked out and Oklahoma City and Guthrie were well on their way to become cities.

Thus was developed this region which came into the possession of the United States as a part of the Louisiana Purchase in 1803 and which was set aside for so many years as Indian country. Previous to the formation of Oklahoma territory, congress had forbidden white settlers in this part of the country, and this edict was enforced by federal troops. As the demand for more land was felt and as the Indians decreased in numbers, Indian territory was added to Oklahoma territory, and in 1907 it was admitted to the Union as the State of Oklahoma, adding another star to our flag, which for eleven years had contained forty-five. The state has flourished to such an extent that it has ten presidential electors, which is more than double that of any of the older states of larger size.

SALESMEN WILL FLY SOON, AS STATEMENT

Airman Predicts Drummers
Will Utilize Plane
Entirely

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 28.—Traveling salesmen making their "jumps" between points by airplane is not a dream, but soon will be a reality.

Such is the statement of Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, America's "King of the air" during the war, who will soon make an experiment of this kind. The flying "ace" is now connected with an automobile firm selling a machine which is his own product.

"Rick" designed the engine himself and is aiding in putting the car on the market. Trains travel too slowly for Rickenbacker, who says he will soon introduce the "traveling salesman of the air."

Is Coming Soon.

"Commercial flying will be a casual fact before long," he said, while here on a business trip. "For instance, I'm planning to cover a territory of 10,000 miles this spring in the interest of my business by plane, which would ordinarily take at least seven months and require several men for the job. I shall do this in one month."

Col. A. F. Lorenzin, who accompanied Rickenbacker on his trip here, said railroad travel is very irksome for the war hero and that he pines for the air and the speedy motor.

"On our way from New York to Chicago," the colonel said, "Eddie looked out of the window and remarked how foolish it was to take such a length of time to come from New York to Chicago. He said we should have been in Chicago many hours before the time that we arrived there."

Plenty of Time.

Here Rickenbacker stepped back into the conversation.

"That's a fact," he said. "It will be nothing in the future for one to fly from Chicago to New York, see a show, drop in for the 'Midnight Frolics' on the roof, go down to the aerodrome go to bed and reach Chicago by 6:30 or 7 the next morning, in plenty of time for ordinary business."

WHALES, SWORDFISH
IN FIERCE BATTLE

London, Jan. 30.—That the monsters of the deep fight in groups as well as engage in personal encounters, is testified to by Capt. G. Evered Poore, a commissioner in the Gold-coast colony, who writes the following to his brother.

"Between Sierra Leone and Sekondi we steamed thru, for over an hour, a blood-red sea, and saw some hundreds of whales dead or dying on the surface of the water. Some were just able to move slowly along; few if any, could move quickly. There must have been a sanguinary battle, supposed to have been put up by swordfish. It was a most appalling sight, and the extent of the bloody expense must have represented the death of many more whales than were visible. No one on our ship had ever seen or even heard of anything approaching such a spectacle before."

"SOCIETY" BLAMED FOR UNDERWORLD DANCES

Chicago, Jan. 30.—Ultra aristocratic society is to blame for the introduction of underworld dances to the public. Such, at least, is the opinion of J. Louis Guyon, owner of one of Chicago's largest public dance halls.

"About the time the tango was introduced to the public," he said, "it became the fashion for wealthy people who followed the fads of society to go on 'slumming parties.'"

"The hostess, who took her guests to the dives on the border of the red light district to drink bad liquor and listen to suggestive songs and watch the suggestive dancing of the entertainers," thought she was providing the last word in entertainment. She was giving her guests the newest thing in thrills. They were experiencing another plane of life without undergoing its perils.

"From merely being spectators, the members of those slumming parties came to be participants. They mastered the intimate contortions of the Tenderloin dance halls and introduced them to their own drawing rooms."

"From this beginning the immoral dances spread to the public ballrooms and became the fad."

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTOR

Illinois Central System Calls State Control of Rates Backward Step

There has been much discussion lately of bills introduced into Congress to take away from the Interstate Commerce Commission all authority over state rates. The proposed legislation, we believe is unprogressive, impracticable and illogical.

Our Federal Constitution grew out of a generally accepted feeling on the part of the people that commerce among the states should be free. Our forefathers were convinced that nothing but ruin and chaos would result from a system which allowed one state to put restrictions upon the commerce of another state. The Federal Government was founded upon the theory that commerce and trade were national subjects and should not be subjected to local conditions. To that end the Constitution confers the exclusive power upon Congress to regulate commerce among the states. By a long line of Supreme Court decisions it is now thoroughly settled that a state must not be permitted to make any rate or regulation which will interfere with interstate commerce. The power of the Interstate Commerce Commission to condemn such rates which do discriminate against interstate commerce has been repeatedly upheld.

As a practical matter, everyone knows that a railway system traversing a number of states is operated as a unit. All its property is used in both interstate and intrastate commerce. Its revenues from both are commingled; its expenses as between the two classes of commerce cannot be accurately separated. It ought not to maintain upon its line as many separate and distinct systems of rates as there are states which it traverses. In the case of the Illinois Central System, passing through and touching fourteen states, it is obvious at a glance that it ought not to have fifteen systems of rates, one applicable to interstate commerce, and fourteen others applicable to the commerce of the different states which it serves. If such a theory is sound, so far as the practical effect is concerned, it would be equally sound to say that each county traversed by the railroad should have the right to make a separate system of rates. Of course, there is a political difference as between the relation of counties to states and states to nation, but, as a practical matter, the two situations are analogous.

No one has ever been able to give any good reason why a passenger making an intrastate journey should pay a rate lower than or different from that of the passenger making an interstate journey, both occupying the same seat and receiving precisely the same accommodations. Railroads in the United States have for a long time struggled against this divided authority. They have been subjected to a number of conflicting regulations, and have been greatly embarrassed and inconvenienced by the necessity of obeying the mandates of various state commissions on the subject of rates, many of which conflict with one another. In some instances state commissions have frankly announced their purpose to give to the people of their own state an advantage over the people of another state by making a discriminatory rate adjustment. In one western state, a state commission put out an order requiring the railroads to put up placards in their stations explaining how an interstate passenger can defeat the interstate rate by buying a ticket to a border line point, getting off the train, and rebuying across the border. All these considerations induced Congress, in the Transportation Act, to provide more convenient machinery than had theretofore existed whereby discriminations against interstate commerce could be removed, and whereby the states would be required to contribute their fair share toward the expense of maintaining the transportation machine.

While present legislation does not go so far, yet it is recognized by all thoughtful students of the problem that there should be but one body with power to regulate rates, and that the national body. There would still be left to the state commissions many important duties in connection with their police power. Their jurisdiction would be unimpaired as to service matters, such as operation of intrastate trains, character of station facilities, crossings, etc.

It is a great mistake to suppose that the control of rates by the Interstate Commerce Commission would make it more troublesome and expensive for patrons of the railroad to obtain relief. The Interstate Commerce Commission has more than a thousand expert employes, drawn from every section of the country, thoroughly familiar with local problems and competent to assist in the solution of rate questions. A petition to the Interstate Commerce Commission will in nearly every case bring one of these examiners almost to the door of the petitioner, where the complaint can be heard. The proceeding is informal, the expense is less, generally speaking, than is involved in going to the state capital to present a matter to the state commission, and no reason exists why the public generally should not look with favor upon a system which will insure fair, consistent and harmonious treatment of the rate structure of the country.

The removal of the war tax January 1 has had the effect of making a substantial reduction in both freight and passenger rates, and the railroads have placed in effect reductions in freight rates on agricultural products. They will continue to make reductions as often as they are able to do so without impairing their ability to serve the public.

Constructive criticism and suggestions are invited.

C. H. MARKHAM,
President, Illinois Central System.

NEW SUBCHASER IS SPEEDY SHIP

British Craft Said To Make Forty-Eight Miles An Hour.

London, Jan. 28.—The type of anti-submarine boats that will be built by the score in this country if the British government judges it to be politically necessary to prepare such defense on a large scale is indicated by recent developments in shipbuilding.

Since the war much progress has been made in the design and construction of these vessels. The latest which has been turned out by a British shipyard is fifty-five feet long with a beam of eleven feet and a draught of three feet three inches. For the sake of lightness and flexibility the vessel is built entirely of wood. It has two skins of mahogany with a layer of oiled canvass between them. A third skin at the fore portion of the boat forms a step of about three and one-half inches in depth, upon which the vessel rises as she gathers speed and by means of which she achieves a skimming action over the surface of the water.

This remarkable vessel is said to have attained an average speed of nearly forty-eight miles an hour during her official trials; she carries two eighteen-inch torpedoes, two depth charges and four machine guns. Moreover, she is capable of standing very heavy weather.

FORMER SOLDIERS FOUND TO MAKE BEST STUDENTS

Washington, Jan. 28.—World War veterans make the best students, according to scholastic records announced here by the United States Veterans' Bureau.

Soldiers who returned to their universities after serving in the World War scored higher scholastic grades, the records showed, than their classmates who enrolled since the war. The records also showed that the former soldier was more earnest in his study and more anxious to learn.

Records sent to the bureau from the University of Minnesota showed the veterans led both fraternity and nonfraternity men. Similar reports were also received from the Leland Stanford University, University of California and University of Wisconsin.

Surgeons agree that in cases of cuts, burns, bruises and wounds, the first treatment is most important. When an efficient antiseptic is applied promptly, there is no danger of infection and the wound begins to heal at once. For use on man or beast, Borozone is the ideal antiseptic and healing agent. Buy it now and be ready for an emergency. Price 30c, 60c, and $1.20. Sold by Ohio County Drug Co.

TO ARRAIGN GOV. SMALL ON CHARGES TOMORROW

Waukegan, Ill., Jan. 28.—Arraignment of Gov. Len Small and Vernon Curtis, Grant Park Banker, to enter their plea of "not guilty" to the indictment charging them with embezzlement of state funds, will take place Monday, according to present plans. Governor Small appeared before Judge Claire C. Edwards today, but his arraignment was again postponed, while attorneys for state and defense argued on the motion by defense attorneys for separate trials for the two defendants.

A scald burn, or severe cut heals slowly if neglected. The family that keeps a bottle of Ballard's Snow Liniment on hand is always prepared for such accidents. Price 30c, 60c and $1.20 per bottle. Sold by Ohio County Drug Co.

STRONG FOR EVEN BREAK IN HOME

Pastor Declares 'Fifty-Fifty' Basis
Only Key To Happiness.

Chicago, Jan. 28.—The smoothest road to nuptial bliss, and the one road that leads to happiness in the home is a fifty-fifty agreement between husband and wife, under which neither husband nor wife holds a monopoly on family arguments. Split 'em up evenly and distribute them thruout the year and the results will prove miraculous.

Take this from the Rev. Carl D. Case, pastor of a Chicago Baptist church. The Rev. Case offers a few suggestions to aid in the realization of marital happiness, among which are the following:

"Don't be cross at the same time your wife is. Wait your turn. Score a point by keeping still."

"The man who makes his wife beg for spending money is worse than an infidel."

"Don't delay marriage until you have made a fortune. You deprive your wife or half of the joys of married life."

"A marriage may be made in heaven, but it can be moved to hell in a day and one person can move it."

"Courtship should be continuous. Many a man is more gracious to some other man's wife than his own. A man impressive in business may be oppressive at home."

"A man who expects his wife to be purer than himself should be watched by his business partner. Double standards have a habit of repeating."

"Every man should marry unless he conscientiously can not. It is only the fool who says:

"The happiest life that ever was led is always to court and never to wed."

FRIDAY,.....FEBRUARY 3

The Kentucky Legislature can perhaps legislate, to a certain extent, Darwin and his theories out of the State Schools, at least prevent teaching along that line, if it is really done, but we have serious misgivings as to whether christianity is to be advanced or benefitted by that much notice of the matter. What is the trouble with the preachers, the churches and all the allied influences that the law is to be invoked in order to prevent thinking upon certain lines. We feel certain that we are not of the class called heretic, and would not think of going into a community to make our home where the doctrine of the Crucified and victorious Christ is not taught and observed, but, as we said, we doubt seriously, the wisdom of legislating in an effort to make one think a certain way or to prevent his doing some other way if he so elects. Church is one thing. State and the free right of thinking is another.

The apparent injustice of the ways of justice is sometimes vague and hard of understanding. Only experts perhaps can successfully explain the whyforness of certain laws and their operation in specific cases. One example will illustrate what we have in mind: We chanced to stroll into the Halls of Justice one day during the present week and dropped in upon an examining trial wherein a certain individual had been arrested and placed in jail some days previous, upon the charge of unlawfully having liquor in his possession. (There may have been some other frills attached but that suffices). After the evidence had been heard for and on behalf of the Commonwealth the presiding Judge inquired of the accused whether he had anything to say or any evidence to offer in his own behalf. Whereupon he made the statement that he had nothing to say, excepting that he was guilty of having liquor in his possession as stated by witnesses and that he would make no denial of the facts and asked the Court to proceed to assess the fine. The Court informed the party that he could not do so under the law. But the defendant insisted that he be fined and have it over with, as he was guilty and would make no denial of the truth. At the time he was unable to execute the $200 bond fixed by the Court for his appearance in circuit court, pending action of the grand jury a month or more from date. In the meantime the young man must lay in jail, be fed and given medical attention, should it be necessary, at public expense, to wait upon the time when a grand jury finds an indictment upon a charge of which he acknowledges guilt, all because the County Courts are not allowed to take jurisdiction of cases of this character. We fail absolutely, to see any good or sensible reason for laws preventing final disposition of cases like the one above mentioned. We strongly favor amending our laws so that this character of cases may be reached by County Courts. It is justice to those who may be accused and certainly not detrimental to public interest and welfare. We have advocated the limit in punishment for the vicious and willful violator of the law and established rules of society, and we yet hold to the belief that punishment cannot, or is not liable to be too severe on criminals of the latter character, those guilty of crimes of enormity. Delays in disposition of their cases does not matter so much, because they merit confinement and, then too, it is in the interest of society that they be in confinement, but for offenses of lesser gravity, similar to the one we mention, speedy, but fair disposition of the cases ought always be had. Under our system, the delays are too long between Courts of jurisdiction. Let's give the County Courts a wider range.

Mrs. Bud Barker, Messrs. John and Deal McDaniel were called to the bed-side of their sister, Mrs. Jesse Isom, who died Jan. 30. Several from here attended the burial at Bethlem Tuesday. She leaves many friends and relatives who mourn her loss.

Misses Daisy Belle Hobbs and Pearl Joe Burdette were the guests of their aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. O. T.
Burdette Saturday night.

Miss Mattie Barnett is ill with a severe cold.

Miss's Virgie Mae and Nina Burdette spent Monday January 26, with their grandmother, Mrs. Mary Obenchain, it being her 88th birthday.

Mr. Leonard Taylor was the guest of his father, Mr. Pate Taylor of Haysville, Sunday.

Georgia Lee Payne, who has been ill with pneumonia, is better.

Mr. John Burdette, who has been ill for several weeks, is improving.

POND RUN.

Mr. and Mrs. Dick Stewart are the proud parents of a big girl.

Mrs. Ruth Hunter, who has been very ill, is some better.

Mr. Corba Fulton, who has been visiting his parents and other relatives here, has returned to his home in Freeport, Ill.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Fulton and little daughter, Edna Mae, are visiting Mrs. Fulton's parents, Mr. and Mrs.
Dinah Cox and other relatives near Paradise.

Mrs. Mollie Brown of Beaver Dam, has moved to Louisville.

Mr. Harvey Robertson of near here lost a fine buggy horse, last week.

Mrs. Clate Ross is very sick, at this writing.

Misses Sophia and Piccola Fulton visited their brother, O. I. Fulton, of Wysox, recently.

Miss Martha Southard has gone to Beaver Dam to attend school until May.

Three pupils of No. 19 took the Common School examination. They were Vivian Robertson, Alvah Ross and Miss Martha Southard.

Miss Carrie Southard will leave Sunday for Bowling Green to enter school.

Mr. Orval Cooper and two children are getting along fine.

BARNETTS CREEK.

Farmers in this community are very busy burning tobacco beds, and making preparations for the coming crop year.

The little daughter of Mr. and Mrs.
Ernest Westerfield, who has been ill with bronchial pneumonia, is much better.

Messrs. Bonnie and Ernest Bartlett, each, have purchased a horse of Mr. Albert Helm.

Mr. and Mrs. Onis Wade of near Concord, spent from Saturday until Monday with Mr. Wade's mother, Mrs. Cloah Wade.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Bartlett went to Henderson Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Noble Bartlett are the parents of a baby girl, born Jan.
29.

A birthday dinner was served at the home of Mrs. Cloah Wade Sunday in honor of her own and Mrs. Jesse Wade's birthday. The former was 64 and the latter 33 years of age.

Mrs. J. L. Massie, who has been quite ill of pneumonia, is getting along nicely.

Mr. Alvin Rowe, cashier of the Farmers Bank, Centertown, was in Hartford on business, yesterday.

R. A. (Doc Spot) Bennett left Sunday for Springfield, Ill., where he will remain with his son, J. Caskey Bennett and Mrs. Bennett several weeks.

Mr. Joe Hocker, of near town, accompanied by Mrs. Hocker, went to Owensboro Wednesday for the purpose of undergoing an operation for an extremely bad abscessed throat, is much improved and will likely return home today. The abscess ruptured of its own accord during Wednesday night.

"I hear tell they have private baths in the new hotel over at Tumlinville," stated Gap Johnson.

"That's the way they ort to have 'em, if they're goin' to have 'em a-tall!" snapped his quick-thinking better half.—Country Gentleman.

STRAY STREAKS

(By Fluke McFluke.)

Our venerable friend Howard Ellis says as how he noticed in I. D.
Claire's beads where he was inviting suggestions for improvement of the string, and he axed us to say in this column (he, Howard, not being desirous of investing in postage to write Clair a personal epistle) that for improving and fetching Claire's column up to perfection itself, he would suggest leaving it blank. In other words, Ellis advises hanging the aforesaid string on the waste-hook.

We would not wish Mrs. Porter to get on to this little secret, but, one of her closest neighbors is fixing to double-cross her, 'cause we happened to get on to the fact that when Alec was down home the other day he made arrangements with said neighbor, in the event Missus Porter ever fixed to run up to Louisville to rush to a telephone and advise h.m. so he could have time to get the red out of his eyes and off of his nose and straighten up generally, just as though he was leading a respectable life every day he lived.

If John Henry, John Moore, Specks
Hler, Ad Howard and Alec Porter, that quintette of ex-Ohio Countians now domiciled in Louisville, ever get to galloping together Chief of Police Braden, will undoubtedly have to enlarge his force.

A friend of ours told us of a man, a stranger in these parts, who saw Judge Wedding, Ransie Martin, Mutt
Hunter and Pud Stevens together a few days back and he says as how the fellow wanted to know what circus was exhibiting here. This quartette you know would weigh in the neighborhood of 1,100 lbs. gross.

Tice Burns went out to his farm
the other morning and found his favorite turkey gobbler with his wings drooping, his head all swollen and apparently in the last stages of life.
Dr. Burns immediately returned to town, procured a bottle of Vick's salve, some cough lozenges, and in rummaging through his drawers he uncovered a box of capsules loaded with powders of some sort prescribed for himself year before last for a cold.
He took all of this stuff back to the farm and proceeded to physic his Tom Turkey. He put a half pound of the salve on old Tom's head, jammed the bad-cold powders, a compound cathartic pill and the lozenge down said gobbler's neck. The tokey was still living yesterday but was reported as roosting on very low limbs.

Our old friend Tom Stevens, now clerking on a steamboat running out of Memphis, was in town this week and he says as how he has improved morally and spiritually since he left this part of the country and disasso-ciated himself from Jim Goodman and John Henry. Tom said he met Goodey, who was complaining of stomach ailments, but Tom lows as how it was all on account of the inability of J. I. to get roastingear water.

A friend told us a few days ago that John King who removed to Louisville some months back was awfully dissatisfied, did not like the City a little bit. He said John said people didn't 'pear to want to speak to him when he met them on the streets and alleys, that while there seemed to be lots of people this year, in Louisville, he got as lonesome as the dickens.

FARM DEPARTMENT.

Big Increase Expected In Acreage Of Pastures.

Lexington, Ky., Feb. 1.—As a result of the low prices of farm products, the acreage of grasses and clover seeded in Kentucky this spring is expected to be increased approximately 100 per cent over that of 1920 soils and crops specialists at the College of Agriculture say. This is in line with the increase reported for 1921 when the acreage was increased about 50 per cent over that of 1920. About 80 per cent of the increased acreage will be seeded in that section of the State which normally seeds red top or herd's grass for pasture, according to the specialists. Good stands and success in growing the increased acreage will depend upon proper preparation of the seed bed and the use of sufficient seed, the specialists have pointed out to farmers.

"Grasses of all kinds catch best on seed beds that are compact beneath and only loose enough on top to cover the seed," Ralph Kenney, one of the specialists said. Land growing a cover crop of rye that is being grazed rather heavily is an ideal place to sow red top since the tramping brings the seed in close contact with the moist earth and enables it to take roots. If the soil is loose on fields without a cover crop, it is frequently best to roll the land immediately after the grass has been sown.

"In spite of the fact that farmers in many localities of Kentucky sow only three pounds of red top an acre, not less than five pounds should be used and 10 pounds is not too much. The amount of labor and trouble necessary to obtain a thick stand can be reduced if sufficient quantities of the seed are used in the first seeding.

"In seeding red top, it is best to use a peck of Japan clover to the acre at the same time. This mixture increases the grazing furnished by the red top alone and in addition the clover, which is a legume, adds to the fertility of the soil.

"Early seedings, if not killed by freezing, usually make the largest crop by mid summer and also usually come through the summer in better shape. Many farmers sow their seed one-third at a time at ten day intervals to insure a stand."

Anti-Hog-Cholera Serum Saves Many Hogs.

The impression that hog cholera is a disease that will be eliminated before many years thru the use of anti-hog-cholera serum has been spread throughout the country, but there is little ground for such a belief, says the United States Department of Agriculture. The serum treatment, when properly given, will protect hogs against the disease, but it does not go to the source and eliminate the germs from the country, which would be necessary if hog cholera is to become a thing of the past. It might be possible to eliminate the disease if every hog in the United States could be kept immunized all of the time, but such a measure would be impractical, if not impossible.

Hog cholera is of varying prevalence, both as to the time of the year and as to periods of several years. In the fall—October and November—there is more of this disease than in the other months. The number of hogs per thousand affected by it changes greatly from year to year, also. There have been years such as 1887, 1897 and 1913, when cholera raged throughout the Corn Belt, causing great losses to farmers. In the years intervening between these high points the losses were relatively low.

Since 1913 hog cholera has been but slightly prevalent as compared with the worst years, but there is no assurance that other great waves of the disease will not occur as they did before serum was used. It has been but 8 years since the last high point in losses from cholera, and the records of the Department of Agriculture show that the period between the high points of prevalence is usually 10 years or longer.

This fall there are reports of increased losses from cholera, but some increase is to be expected every fall. The fact that farm products have brought smaller returns in recent months has no doubt caused less serum to be bought, and many farmers have lost their herds when they might have saved them. Perhaps they could not have prevented the occurrence of the disease, but they could have prevented the hogs from dying of it.

Getting rid of hog cholera is not a simple matter, which may be appreciated when it is remembered that the infection has been carried to all parts of the United States and that the ways in which it spreads are probably not all thoroughly known. It may be many a long year before this plague of the swine industry is eliminated. The best thing to be done now is for each farmer to keep close watch over his herd, and on the first suspicion of the disease immunize every hog.

Some men now consider immunization against hog cholera as one of the regular expenses of pork production and have it done every year. They realize that it is not a cure, but only a prevention against loss. Even when serum is used there is sometimes a loss, but in nearly all cases the method is very successful. It is the only dependable means available for preventing losses from hog cholera.

Feed Cost Of Producing Eggs Varies Greatly With Breed.

Careful poultrymen like to know what it costs them to produce a dozen eggs, but it is not possible for anyone to tell them. With certain information obtained through experimental feeding to start with, they must figure it out for themselves. Since the feed constitutes the principal cost, it is possible to get some idea of the real cost if the amount of grain used in making a dozen eggs is known. The United States Department of Agriculture has kept records that show about what amounts are used by general-purpose fowls and Leghorns, and by using the local price for grain in connection with these figures the feed cost of a dozen eggs can be obtained with fair accuracy.

The grain consumed to produce a dozen eggs will vary a great deal, depending upon the skill of the poultryman, but it is assumed that he knows how to feed economically. The general-purpose fowls and Leghorns used in this feeding work were kept on the test while pullets and yearlings. As pullets the general-purpose fowls produced 130.5 eggs a year and $8.1 as yearlings. The Leghorns produced an average of 138.7 eggs as pullets and 124.9 as yearlings.

The general-purpose pullets ate in a year an average of 6.7 pounds of feed per dozen eggs produced, and the yearlings ate 9.6 pounds. The Leghorn pullets ate 4.8 pounds and the yearlings 5.5 pounds. The general-purpose pullets ate 1.9 pounds more feed in producing a dozen eggs than the Leghorn pullets, and the difference increases very rapidly with the age of the stock, the general-purpose yearlings consuming 4.1 pounds more feed per dozen eggs than the Leghorn yearlings; therefore the Leghorn yearlings produced eggs upon much less feed than the general-purpose breeds.

The value of the general-purpose breeds for market, or for hatching and breeding, makes them usually the most desirable breeds for the general farmer and the backyard poultry raiser, while the Leghorns are especially adapted for the commercial egg farms, say the poultrymen of the department.

Store Away Canvas Bags And Covers Only When Dry.

Canvas and duck wagon and crop covers and canvas bags are liable to damage in the winter through moisture, causing subsequent mildew or rotting unless they are dried before being stored, says the Bureau of Chemistry of the United States Department of Agriculture. Canvas which has become wet or even damp should be dried as soon as possible by being spread over a wagon or hung over a fence or large pole until it is thoroughly dry. If the weather is wet, it may be hung under a shed or in the barn. No canvas bags, etc., should be folded or stored while damp.

Folding of a heavy canvas, especially if it has been stiffened by a waterproofing treatment or by being wet or frozen, may weaken or crack the fabric, causing it to leak. For this reason—should hang over a beam or large horizontal pole, or should be suspended against the inside of a barn or shed rather than folded. Canvas and duck will give better service and last longer if waterproofed. The United States Department of Agriculture, in Farmers' Bulletin 1157, gives full directions for waterproofing and mildewproofing cotton duck. The bulletin may be had free on application.

Egg Production Increased By Use of Animal Feed.

Meat scrap or some other animal feed high in protein is the one essential constituent of the mash which can not well be omitted. The United States Department of Agriculture found that a pen of pullets, on free range, which did not get meat scrap or any other animal-protein feed laid only 90 eggs each in a year, compared with yields of from 125 to 150 eggs from pens fed rations containing meat scrap. The eggs from the pen where no meat scrap was fed cost 2.2 cents more a dozen for feed than when the meat scrap was included in the ration. Fish meal or fish scrap can be used to replace the meat scrap and compares favorably with a good grade of meat scrap containing the same per cent of protein.

Skim milk or buttermilk, either sweet or sour, is excellent for replacing part or all of the meat scrap. The milk may be used in mixing the mash if a moist mash is fed, or it can be kept before the fowls as a drink. If clabbered and fed thick or like cheese, hens will eat enough of it to replace all of the meat scrap needed. A little bone meal makes an excellent addition to the mash or it can be used to replace a part of the meat scrap. Green cut bone, if fresh and sweet, will also take the place of meat scrap if fed at the rate of one-third to one-half ounce daily per hen.

Live Stock Require Salt.

Salt is required by all animals. The United States Department of Agriculture says that the dairy cow requires an ounce or more a day, and, while she should be given all she needs, she should not be forced to take more than she wants. It is best, therefore, to give only a small quantity on the feed, and to place rock salt in the boxes in the yard, where the stock can lick it at will.

FARMERS SHOULD RAISE MORE GOOD UTILITY HORSES

Federal Authorities State That Horses Are More Economical on Farms Than Motorized Tractors or Trucks—An Infusion of Thoroughbred Blood Gives Spirit, Vigor And Endurance To All Breeds

There is now a recognized "horse zone" where short hauls and frequent stops are necessary in both city and country into which the truck and tractor cannot enter and compete with the horse without loss to the merchant and the farmer. After a costly experiment the horse is coming into his own, displacing the motorized truck and tractor, particularly on the farm, where it has been conclusively demonstrated that there is economy in breeding a suitable type of horse for a varied agricultural service.

At a recent meeting in Chicago of the Horse Association of America, H. C. Taylor, Chief of the Federal Bureau of Farm Markets, presented some interesting figures, the result of official investigations, proving that horses are more economical in every field of operation on farms than the motorized tractor or truck.

Computed on 1921 feed prices, the cost of power per acre, according to the U. S. Department findings, is $1.37 for plowing with horses as compared with $1.72 with tractors; disking, $1.40 with horses and $1.50 with tractors; disking in combination, $1.20 with horses as against $1.50 with tractors; harrowing 15c with horses as against 30c with tractors; drawing hay loader, 52c with horses and 91c with tractors, and drawing grain binder, 31c with horses, 55c with tractors.

The value of mechanical motive power is clearly recognized by the Horse Association of America, but after a thorough nationwide inquiry, it has been shown that the enforced displacement of the horse in farm work has been expensive to the farmer and has increased the cost of living to every family in America.

The various State Agricultural Colleges, particularly in the central west, are stressing the point that horses should be bred for the definite qualities which stand the test of long, hard service, an infusion of thoroughbred blood giving spirit, vigor and endurance to the colder breeds.

George Lane, head of a $1,000,000 live-stock ranch in Canada, in a recent letter to Wayne Dismore, Secretary of the Horse Association of America, said:

"I have crossed Thoroughbred sires on broncho mares; on high grade Clydesdale mares; on mares sired by Percheron stallions out of broncho dams; on mares that were 3/4 or 1/2 Percheron; and whenever I had a pure bred Percheron mare that would not settle to a Percheron sire, I bred her to a Thoroughbred sire, and usually got such mares in foal, the result being a crossbred thoroughbred Percheron. We have bred the female produce resulting from these various crosses to both thoroughbred and Percheron sires, so that we have horses carrying various degrees of thoroughbred blood—from 1/4 to 3/4 bred from mares of various types and blood strains. From long experience in the use of such horses, and our actual breeding operations, I know that the thoroughbred cross on any draft mare increases quality, endurance, and length of life."

The manufacture of mechanical motive power already has caused an enormous drain upon our available labor resources, so that every time a farmer, or business man, buys a mechanical power unit which he does not absolutely need, he is simply bidding up the labor market against himself. Nor can the market for coarse grains be left out of consideration. The displacement of horses occurring in the years 1910 to 1920, destroyed an annual market for over 113 million bushels of oats, 70 million bushels of corn and 4 1/2 million tons of hay—more than the average total export per year on these items. The curtailment of city demand cuts off not only the outlet for surplus farm horses, but this great market for staple farm products.

THE BOOKKEEPER

By AGNES BROGAN

Copyright, 1921, Western Newspaper Union.

Peter glanced apprehensively from the line of figures into his employer's face. Nathaniel C. Croten stood in the office doorway, his bearing insufferably condescending.

"Mr. Grundy," he said, with a nod at Peter, "I am sorry to inform you that we must have another bookkeeper—young blood, Mr. Grundy, and a newer method of management. You must admit that we have been patient in retaining your services in that capacity. While we acknowledge your faithfulness in years past, and, er—devotion to duty, still you have lost ground, and are, in short, too slow for our constantly increasing business. Stewart said to me only this morning, 'We need a man with push and pep in that department, that he may help with the sales.' And so we do, I have, therefore, mapped out an ad which I will ask you to look over before mailing to the papers."

Nathaniel Croten's tight lips loosened in their nearest approach to a smile. "We shall endeavor to continue your services in some lesser capacity, Mr. Grundy."

Peter bowed. There was really nothing to say. His employer's charge was just. He realized that he was daily growing slower, stupider in his work. He could not tell, himself, why this was so. He seemed all at once to have lost interest. Perhaps Lida's death was responsible. Lida, his dearly loved sister, had for so many years been the object of his care, that when Lida was taken there was nothing left. "You notice that clause in my advertisement," Nathaniel Croten was saying, "only an energetic person of capability need apply?"

"Yes," Peter quietly answered, "I notice it. The advertisement will go in this evening."

"We thought," the big man added, "that we might be able to use you in our sales department, at a smaller salary, Mr. Grundy."

Again Peter bowed. Again, there appeared to be nothing to say. Mr. Croten looked back.

"We would like you to go over the books with the new bookkeeper."

The next afternoon Peter and Nathaniel Croten were in the outer office when the bookkeeper whom Stewart, the junior partner, had decided to employ, was ushered into their presence.

Mr. Croten brought his chair to the floor with a bang, while Peter, staring, readjusted his glasses. For the accepted applicant was a young woman; an exceedingly pretty young woman. Her dark eyes snapped quizzically at the elder partner, while they seemed to twinkle as she turned an appraising gaze on Peter.

"Well," she announced briskly, "I am the bookkeeper. Mr. Stewart has engaged me. My recommendations exactly suit him; the only reason that I left my place with the Cooks, attorneys, being that I was tired of it." Nathaniel Croten arose, his amazed expression gave way to one of pleased interest.

As the office door closed behind the senior partner's important figure, Peter was possessed of a boyish shyness. This young woman was so appealingly assured, yet so frankly engaging. He felt painfully aware of the neat shabbiness of his clothing, and knew with an unaccustomed keenness, that this capable girl was wondering how it had happened that he was a failure. But as the days passed, and Peter fell resignedly into his new work in the store, he grew to look forward pleasantly to the sight of the girl perched there on the high stool.

Sometimes she would beckon him regarding a reference, and sometimes, when Nathaniel C. Croten and Stewart were out at luncheon, Peter and she would eat their lunch together, surreptitiously, like two school children, under cover of the big desk. Peter's eyes began to regain their old humorous light, and before he knew, Peter was telling the clever little bookkeeper his life's simple gray story. Nathaniel Croten, when he returned from lunch, would visit always the high desk in the office, when, often, he required Jane Gordon's assistance in business consultation. He evinced a new pride in dress and an added degree of pomposity.

"The old widower is taking notice again," the office boy laughed; and suddenly Peter's newly hopeful heart dropped to its old place of sad resignation. He realized, then, the reason of its recent sweet hopefulness.

Half-unconsciously, he, the white-haired, long-patient failure, had dared at last to know love and its great ambition. Peter looked from the window, to see the two of whom he had been thinking crossing the road together. A moment more and they were in the office. The senior partner tossed his fur coat to a chair and passed into his private sanctum. The little bookkeeper climbed to her stool.

"Peter," she said, "Peter, I am going to tell you a secret Nathaniel Croten has proffered to me himself in marriage."

Wistfully Peter's tired eyes were raised to her. Dumbly Peter waited. Against his will the words fell from his lips: "And I—I loved you so!" he said.

The energetic and capable young person slipped down from her stool. "Oh, my dearest dear!" she cried. "I knew you did; that's one reason why I refused Mr. Croten."

TOO STARVED TO BE HUNGRY?

There Comes a Final Stage in the Horror, When Taste for Food Is Lacking.

I cannot quite bring myself to tell tales of famine horrors—the monkey-faced, pop-eyed babies tugging hungrily at the cold breasts of dead mothers lying on the frozen ground; the piteous old women and the stoical men; the incredibly deformed starving walf whom I picked up outside of the city of Tching-kiangpu; the boy on the wall of Chinkiang who was carrying home a starved cat for food, and in response to a query, tried so hard to sell it to me as a delicate morsel, and such general concomitants as the incidence of smallpox plague with the famine.

One of the unexpected aspects of work in the famine camps came when I was accompanying Mrs. Paxton of Chinkiang as she made rounds to distribute medicine to the sick among the hungry. As a matter of fact, relatively few persons ever die in a famine directly from actual hunger, but rather from diseases induced by malnutrition.

Obligingly, Mrs. Paxton freely translated for me as we went along, and we found, in pathetic paradox, that the commonest request of these starving creatures was for medicine to give them an appetite! Even when they succeeded in getting a bowl of food from the relief station, ran the repeated tale, they could not eat it, having no taste for food.

To us this meant, obviously, that the sufferers had reached the final stages, where craving for food had passed away. They were not hungry, because they were starving!—William T. Ellis in the Outlook.

NEW TOY FINDS MUCH FAVOR

Parisian Children Hail With Joy Idea Which Has Been Imported From Central Borneo.

The latest toy which Parisian children are buying, and which threatens to displace the scooter in popular favor, is a modern form of the old "jumping stick."

The new "jumping stick," which is called a "pogo," is more scientific than its predecessor, which was nothing more elaborate than a single stilt with two rests for the feet.

It is made with an india rubber pad and with a strong spring, which enables its possessor to take a series of leaps without jar.

The pogo was first found in use, in a primitive form, among the Dyak natives of central Borneo, who gave it that name. It was a stick with a cross-piece, on which certain favored young men used to perform a kind of dance at sacrificial ceremonies.

As the chiefs took charge of the pogos after the ceremony, hiding them until the next occasion for their use, it was very difficult to obtain them, but a French traveler who saw the dance in progress, described them on his return to Paris. From his rough sketch the new Paris toy has been made.

"Mounties" In With Dominion Police

Under an act of parliament the Royal Northwest mounted police of Canada was merged with the Dominion police May 1, 1920, with jurisdiction throughout Canada, and known as the Royal Canadian mounted police.

The Dominion police was a small body of men, the uniformed members of which were employed largely in guarding the parliament buildings, the mint and other government structures in Ottawa. To it was attached a number of highly trained experts, skilled in dealing with international criminals and their schemes, and having knowledge of the finger print system. These are now all members of the Royal Canadian mounted police, under the command of Col. A. Bowen Perry.

The force is now recruited to its prewar average of 1,200. Canadian government officials hope soon to be able to increase it far beyond that number, but the dominion's war debt has to date made that impossible.

Facts Concerning Eels.

Whence the eel comes and whither it goes is the text for an erudite piece of which American Consul Dennis at London claims authorship in a cablegram to Secretary Hoover.

Quaint belief that the eels were miraculously born of horsehairs dropped into ponds from horses' tails is entirely dispelled by Mr. Dennis, who comments upon research work by Doctor Smith, Danish scientist.

The eel's life history, an unfathomable mystery twenty years ago, thus for the first time is made a wide open book, and Mr. Dennis warrants these facts:

The eel lives up to eight years in fresh waters. Adult eels, living their life span, go down to tidewater, where they spawn and die. Newly hatched eels live in a cold and gloomy depth of 500 fathoms. They reappear in late winter.

Bear Island's History.

Midway between Norway and Spitzbergen, Bear Island thrusts its head, known as Mount Misery, above the cold waters. The whole island, save for moss and lichens, is almost destitute of vegetation. Long ago it was joined with the Spitzbergen archipelago; the continental shelf upon which the island sits shows a drowned valley deepening to 200 fathoms; this marks the course of an ancient river system that must have drained an area larger than the present basin of the Volga.—Scientific American.

TOBACCO GROWERS TO TRY SEED TREATMENT

Lexington, Ky., Feb. 1.—In an effort to control wildfire and angular leaf spot, the two most serious diseases of tobacco occurring in the State, many growers will try seed treatment before seeding their plant beds this spring, according to W. D. Vaileau, plant pathologist at the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station. A number of Christian county farmers, who recently had almost a bushel of dark tobacco seed treated at the station are among the most recent ones to employ this control method before planting their seed.

The treatment, which gives promise of rendering the seed disease free, involves the use of bichloride of mercury which is being recommended in preference to formaldehyde as the latter resulted in some injury last year when the seed was not thoroughly washed. The seed is soaked for 15 minutes in a solution made up of one part of bichloride and 1,000 parts of water after which it is washed thoroughly in several changes of clean water. Metal containers cannot be used in the soaking process. After the soaking and washing, the seed is placed in a cheese cloth bag and swung around at arm's length several times to remove the surplus water after which it is spread out in a thin layer to hasten the drying.

GIANT FOSSIL UNEARTHED

Curtis, Neb., Jan. 28.—What is believed to be the largest fossil ever discovered in America has been partly unearthed on the farm of John Cortie near here. Scientists from Denver University, who came here to examine the find, say the fossil is a mammoth, which probably lived 250,000 years ago. The bones are well preserved.

"You are very young to be a registered pharmacist," said the lady with a massive jaw. "I wish the proprietor to wait on me and not any young clerk."

"Where is your prescription?" inquired the proprietor, coming forward.

"I have no prescription. What I want is five 2-cent postage stamps."—Detroit Free Press.

JOHN D. HAS FUN IN BEATING GOLF GUESTS

Ormond Beach, Fla., Jan. 28.—John D. Rockefeller is spending his winter vacation here and when not entertaining guests at his cottage can be found on the golf links.

Despite his advancing age the veteran is an enthusiastic golfer and shows lots of "pep" in advancing over the course. His chief delight is to invite his guests to a game and then defeat them.

He does not allow his social functions to interfere with his ardent pursuit of the little balls he sends flying.

When little Willie entered the room every chair was occupied. "Let's all sing 'America,'" he said, and as everyone rose to sing, little Willie slid into the best seat.—Push.

Bobbie came home one day with a brand new golf ball.

"Look at the lost ball I found on the links, daddy," he said.

But daddy was suspicious. "Are you sure it was a lost ball, son?" he asked.

"Surest thing you know," replied Bobby with conviction. "I saw the man and his caddy both looking for it."—Legion Weekly.

URGE REPEAL OF RAIL GUARANTEE

Washington, Jan. 25.—Recommendation for repeal of the commonly known guaranty clause of the Transportation Act and return to the State Railroad Commissions of control over State rates was voted today by a Subcommittee on Railway Transportation of the General Transportation Committee of the National Agricultural Conference. The vote on the repeal of guaranty clause was 12 to 5 and on the return of the State railway powers 11 to 6.

Recommendation for the construction of the St. Lawrence-Great Lakes waterway project was voted by the Subcommittee on Waterways Transportation under the General Transportation Committee.

HIS INQUIRY

"Paw," began little Lester Livermore, who is of unusual width between the eyes, "if a man 50 years old marries a girl of 17, and his son, aged 25, marries the girl's mother, doesn't that make the old man the son-in-law of his own son and the father-in-law of himself, and—say, Paw, can I go to the picture show tonight if I won't ask any more questions?"

"Yes!" yelled Mr. Livermore.—Kansas City Star.

POLISH WOMEN READY TO CONTRIBUTE JEWELS

Warsaw, Jan. 29.—Gallician women have expressed their willingness to collect gold, silver and jewelry to be used as a basis for new currency. Forty women's organizations have addressed the Polish government volunteering their services in the collection of these gifts to the national treasury.

Dollars and Cents.

Counting it only in dollars and cents, how much did that last cold cost you? A man may not always stop work when he has a cold, but perhaps it would be better if he did. It takes about ten days to get completely rid of a cold under the usual treatment. That time can be much shortened by taking Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and proper care of yourself, in fact, a bottle of this remedy in the house is a mighty good investment during the winter and spring months.

KENTUCKY ANNUAL CROP SUMMARY, 1921

Following is in part, the Kentucky crop report for the year 1921, issued by the State Department of Agriculture, W. C. Hanna, Commissioner, in connection with the U. S. Bureau of Market and Crop Estimates, H. F. Bryant, Statistician:

A decrease of approximately 90,868,000, or about 40 per cent, is shown in the value of Kentucky farmers' principal crops in 1921, compared to 1920, in the annual summary of acreage, production and farm value of crops, issued by the U. S. Bureau of Markets and Crop Estimates in co-operation with State Commissioner of Agriculture W. C. Hanna. The total farm value of the chief crops, including apples, peaches and pears, was $137,396,000 in 1921 compared to $228,264,000 in 1920, altho the acreage of fourteen principal field crops, not including orchards, was 5,791,000 acres in 1921, or 4 per cent less than the 6,034,000 acres of those crops in 1920.

Tobacco was the State's most valuable crop in 1921, being worth $50,485,000 compared to $71,400,000 in 1920. The state's total tobacco acreage in 1921, was 385,000 acres which produced 325,710,000 pounds, of which about 221,009 acres, (190,171,000 pounds) was burley. In 1920 the state's tobacco acreage was about 560,000 acres which produced 476,000,000 pounds, of which about 298,000 acres was burley which produced approximately 265,181,000 pounds. Other crop values are; corn, 1921, $45,183,000; 1920, $83,383,000; hay of all kinds, 1921, $17,377,000; 1920, $28,087,000; wheat, 1921, $7,291,000, 1920, $11,456,000; Irish potatoes, 1921, $6,221,000, 1920, $8,465,000; sorghum syrup, 1921, $2,938,000, 1920, $5,184,000; oats, 1921, $2,672,000, 1920, $4,803,000; sweet potatoes, 1921, $2,153,000, 1920, $2,835,000.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

LAW OF GRAVITY DEFIED DURING STORM BY PLANE

Mineola, L. I., Jan. 28.—Gravity was defied by the United States Air Mail Service airplane, driven by Pilot C. B. D. Colyer, when he tried to land in face of the terrific gale at the Curtiss Engineering Field at Garden City. Altho the propeller was making 1,400 revolutions a minute and the machine was nosed down almost perpendicularly, the machine stood absolutely still hundreds of feet above the field. Colyer finally turned the machine toward Hazelhurst Field, where he landed.

The machine was covered with snow and sleet on arrival with 450 pounds of mail, from Cleveland and Chicago.

IS YOUR HEALTH GRADUALLY SLIPPING?

Interesting Experience of a Texas Lady Who Declares That if More Women Knew About Cardui They Would Be Spared Much Sickness and Worry.

Navasota, Texas.—Mrs. W. M. Peden, of this place, relates the following interesting account of how she recovered her strength, having realized that she was actually losing her health:

"Health is the greatest thing in the world, and when you feel that gradually slipping away from you, you certainly sit up and take notice. That is what I did some time ago when I found myself in a very nervous, run-down condition of health. I was so tired and felt so lifeless I could hardly go at all.

"I was just no account for work. I would get a bucket of water and would feel so weak I would have to set it down before I felt like I could lift it to the shelf. In this condition, of course, to do even my housework was a task almost impossible to accomplish.

"I was . . . nervous and easily upset.

I couldn't rest well at night and was . . . just lifeless.

"I heard of Cardui and after reading I decided I had some female trouble that was pulling me down. I sent for Cardui and began it . . .

"In a very short while after I began the Cardui Home Treatment I saw an improvement and it wasn't long until I was all right—good appetite, splendid rest, and much stronger so that I easily did my house work.

"Later I took a bottle of Cardui as a tonic. I can recommend Cardui and gladly do so, for if more women knew, it would save a great deal of worry and sickness."

The enthusiastic praise of thousands of other women who have found Cardui helpful should convince you that it is worth trying. All druggists sell it.
